Hello dear apes,

today we have updated our website again, where you can find all the latest facts and figures about our campaign. My post yesterday went through the roof, I hope the DRSGME team could answer some of your questions.

We have received a lot of encouragement, which we thank you all very much for. Of course, we also received critical feedback, which is at least as important to us. This feedback ranges from spelling mistakes (sorry, we screwed that up) to more profound political or idealistic attitudes. In addition to the feedback collected here, we've also been trying to collect feedback on the Superstonk Discord and from direct messages. Some of these questions are quite complex, so we need some time to answer them properly.

We hear you and we take feedback very seriously. I still ask you to keep a nice and objective tone among yourselves and with us. It will make things easier for everyone.

You can get an overview of the current campaign at www.drsgme.org. There you will find a subpage where you can easily jump to the right place with the following buttons.

We have tried to describe as simply as possible and as detailed as necessary how the campaign is currently running. If there is anything you are still missing for transparency, please let us know.

PS: I would like to clarify that we do not speak for a specific community like GME or similar but only represent the views of the DRSGME team. We are not financial experts and therefore cannot offer binding financial advice. What we can do is inform people about DRS in combination with GME. Each of us investors is independent and in the end each individual makes his own decisions.

The DRSGME Team,
