Not a shill or a GME fanboy, just keep seeing people obsessed over this stock and trying to figure out why. They keep talking about upcoming expired options, hedge funds that haven't closed out their short positions, fail to deliver ETF exposure today, this new NFT and turnaround plan for GME. And because of all of this they expect huge gains and soon.

I can understand GME's turnaround plan with their new CEO, okay if they do a NFT and digital turnaround plan - okay that makes sense it might be worth double the current valuation. I understand that them getting the WSB boost helped them with their balance sheet and risk of bankruptcy is now gone. But what about it's current valuation? Is it actually going to short squeeze soon? Why should it be worth more ?

So please help me understand if GME will pay off if one was to invest in it or is it a cult following ? Or what is it?
