It's been wild. I thought we plateau'd with DRS after the shareholder meeting. Then the splividend announcement from GME happened and suddenly everyone is DRS'ing a shitload of shares, not just single digits but hundreds or thousands of shares at a time! I had to wait over half an hour to talk to anyone at Fidelity last week. Just goes to show you how much further along we could have been if everyone had been DRS'ing this whole time, instead of waiting until the last minute. I'm guilty too, I saved 100 shares in my brokerage account because I planned to DRS after the split and really fuck them hard, but now I'm only leaving 10 shares there so I can see exactly what happens with them and get in on a class action lawsuit later. After last week and this week, our DRS numbers are going to be astronomically higher! Keep up the momentum everyone!
