

Title: Tinfoil Hat: I think Bath and GME may be tied closer than we think. RC's GME buy in was $86M. RC's Bath buy in was $120M. I think he's serious about Bath.

Author: disoriented_llama

Created 2022-07-04 13:24:35 UTC

Permalink: /r/TheGloryHodl/comments/vr7dmv/tinfoil_hat_i_think_bath_and_gme_may_be_tied/

Url: /r/Superstonk/comments/vqywwzq/tinfoil_hat_i_think_bath_and_gme_may_be_tied/

Linked Post Content:

RC owns 11.9% of GME.

RC owns 9.8% of Bath with calls that could take him to 11.8% if exercised.

RC is basically taking an IDENTICAL position to Bath as GME.

I hear apes talking about RC using Bath to make money off the MOASS and being dismissive about it. IIRC Bath is insane short interest as well.

If RC was just trying to make some side money, why would his position in Bath be almost IDENTICAL to his position in GME?

My spidey senses are tingling. I get the feeling that RC has something BIG planned with Bath. He has written a letter to the Bath board of directors), IIRC he has influence on new board members, and he has several tweets that have been speculated to be about Bath and their board.

I'm NOT trying to convince apes to go buy Bath. Please do not misunderstand my intention.

My intention with this post is to start another discussion about a tinfoil hat theory about a bigger picture that includes BOTH GME *and* Bath as cooperative entities. Is this plausible?

**RC's buy in to Bath is LARGER than his buy in to GME.****

What does this mean?

We are so hard core in our support of GME that we want to ignore all other tickers. I get that. But I tried to bring up this discussion before and my post got deleted by mods for being too focused on Bath and it being 'unrelated' to GME.

I am asking for help in figuring out how it *could be* directly related to GME in RC's long term plan and maybe his 4D chess strategy rolls them together in a way in the future that we are simply not aware of yet.

Again, this is tinfoil hat and I'm not trying to encourage anyone to buy Bath stock. I'm asking for discussion on speculation on what RC's plan may be for his stake in Bath that is almost identical to his stake in GME at buy in.

It is my speculation that he would not simply start two completely independent positions in two companies at the same time that have *heavy* mail order infrastructure in place without considering pooling their resources.

Apes talk about GameStop rivaling Amazon and taking significant market share from them. You need infrastructure to do that. A LOT of it. How much infrastructure does Amazon have now compared to GameStop? How would that compare to GameStop PLUS Bath?

*Maybe* RC is already thinking 2 years down the road in exponential growth. You KNOW he is.

Is it so unreasonable to think that his stake in Bath is him thinking about GameStop's expansion in the future?

What about all of his talk about CEO's and board members OWNING STOCK and aligning with shareholders? What about 'It takes money to buy whiskey'?

He is putting his money where his mouth is. He is practicing what he is preaching. He is doing EXACTLY what he says the respectful leaders *DO.*

In my speculative opinion, I think Ryan Cohen is making 4D chess moves with Bath and he is thinking 12 moves ahead or more, and we are just too smooth brained to see it because he is a 4D chess master and I can't hardly play a regular game of 2D chess.

I think there might be something incredibly significant to GME about Bath. I just don't know WTF it is. But at this point my speculation is that RC might ■■ that Bath stock just as tight as his GME stake.

More tinfoil: Maybe they completely merge years down the line. If RC had *equal stakes* in each, would that somehow benefit a merger? I don't know. But it is certainly a spicy meat-a-ball-a.

I apologize for not linking all of the sources of the numbers, but you can look up the numbers easily enough. I'm on a shitty phone that is really lagging on typing so this post is tedious to type out. I welcome any corrections to anything I have stated. That is one thing I love about this community.

Mods, if there is anything about this post that you disapprove of, please let me know how to change it to meet your approval.

American apes, enjoy your fireworks, and please be extra careful if you are in a draught stricken area as fires start easily with fireworks.

And as a head nod to OG apes:

"None of this is financial advice and I love eating crayons for breakfast."

(thank you u/Bubbola2600 for your inspiring post)

tldr: RC's buy in to Bath is larger than his buy in to GME and almost exactly the same positions as far as percentage of ownership. I speculate he is making 4D chess moves thinking years into the future of folding them together and I want to provoke discussion on this topic.

(I am not promoting apes buy Bath.)

edit:

11.9% vs 11.8%

Less than 1% difference with GME>Bath

***WHY?***

(I encourage apes to refrain from using any stonk tickers unless it is GME)