I know, their articles are super bad and completely wrong, but as long as it gets shared here or on Superstonk, they will gain clicks and money from us.

Right now it feels like they start to acknowledge this, as there are so many articles about Kenny and friends that are basically arguing with us gamestop investors. They don't care if we think their articles are stupid, they just want money off of that, and as long as we keep clicking on them and share them on these subs they will continue doing that.

I say we just start to ignore these articles, which are obviously false anyways, and don't give them the attention they want so desperatly.
