Not every mistake or wording you don't agree with is proof of "crime", sometimes it's just a minimum wage person giving you the knowledge they have which is very often not all (or sometimes any) of the actual facts. Not saying there isn't some crime (or even more often, shady stuff that isn't crime but in an ideal world would be), just that the unpaid intern posting on Twitter about GME (which they probably don't care about even if you find that surprising) should not be your source of proof for anything (even the stuff you want to believe is true).
