

Title: Today would be a good day not to use stop losses. Plus some reminders.

Author: Whowasitwhosaid321

Created 2022-06-10 13:43:10 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/v98299/today_would_be_a_good_day_not_to_use_stop_losses/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/v98299/today\_would\_be\_a\_good\_day\_not\_to\_use\_stop\_losses/

Funds hunt stop losses. As they control the price downward they trip stop losses, causing a snowball effect. No need to help them by using stop losses.

Also, remember that $GME was shorted, likely naked shorting with funds hoping for GameStop to go bankrupt, for many years prior to 2021. This is on top of all the shorting over the past year. With nearly a billion in inventory and over a billion in cash, GameStop bankruptcy isn't going to happen.

Additionally, one of the short hedge funds most effective tactics is boredom of investors over time, hoping apes get tired and sell. The term paperhands comes to mind. Be steadfast and patient.