There must be some 4D chess move up his sleeve right? To assume we would all be able to cast our votes easily would have been a ridiculous assumption. I can't imagine the gme team overlooking that there would be barriers and road blocks on almost every vote that wasn't on CS.

Not FUD, just trying to understand. If the vote doesn't go through because of manipulation in some way, or voters being blocked, what happens? Can the split still go through?
