Along with my GameStop registered shares and a couple in FeeDel, i've had one share in Cash app and two in Public for sometime. Originally the plan was to keep those there to cash out during SquEexe and leave everything else alone. But now I'm thinking since the dividend should I cash those out and put it in Computershare this week. However the last time I bought directly in computer share, it took a week and a half for the share to show up and I didn't get one full share when I did that so I don't wanna lose money but then again I don't want to pay a transactional fee that's equal to one share to get out one share to DRS from drivewealth. I hadn't heard much discussion about CA and Public brokers. Should I keep them there or cash out, buy in FeeDel then DRS. Need advice. I don't want to mess up.
