I am a Chartered Investment Manager (CIM), Senior Portfolio Manager, & Certified Financial Planner (CFP) by trade, and actively manage HNW portfolios with assets under management of more than $150 Million dollars (Mods can contact me to confirm). I do not advise my clients on speculative strategies, but started following GameStop for my own personal trades. However, given the unique position and manipulation around GameStop, I wanted to share the opportunity with my clients. This is the email I prepared and shared with them. I'm happy to say we have several new apes! \[Ps. I suggest they open at least the first few links and read the articles to gain an overview understanding of the opportunity.\]

EMAIL:

Dear *,

As promised, here is the information on GameStop. I look at this as a good long term value investment with a potential for significant gains through a squeeze, and a hedge against a market correction.

PS. Feel free to share with others you think might be interested.

Cheers!

If you aren't familiar with 'GameStop, Ticker GME' beyond what you see in the media, you may want to take a closer look.

GameStop: I like this stock – a lot, but this investment is not for everyone. Please note if you consider investing – due to inferred market manipulation, you will need to do your own due diligence to make a decision on whether this stock is appropriate for you. GameStop's stock can exhibit extreme price volatility, but I am of the personal belief that relative to other publicly traded stocks with similar characteristics, the fundamental valuation of this company should be much greater - conservatively $250 - $350 without manipulation and higher within the next few years as it moves towards it's e-commerce objectives (currently trading around $190.00). A good value stock as a long term hold.

On the upside, I also believe this stock has an opportunity for an historic squeeze! A once in any lifetime opportunity. Underpinning this, it is believed that there has been mass market manipulation perpetrated. The following is information that I have put together to provide a snapshot of information leading to these beliefs. There is some great fact-based information and due diligence shared, along with some educated hypothetical and theoretical information.

If you are interested in making an informed decision around this stock you may want to delve into the information provided below, and I would strongly suggest you (re)watch 'The Big Short' (2008 subprime crisis movie) and the documentary 'The Inside Job'. These movies highlight, among other things, the corruption of market makers, bankers, and government officials. They also highlight shortcomings in market regulations and the huge issues surrounding the derivative markets – and it has gotten much worse leading to 2021.

Summary,

GameStop's stock had a reported short interest greater than 220% of the company's total float earlier this year (the rule of thumb is that short interest as a percentage of float above 10% is pretty high and above 20% is extremely high). It is believed that the short interest has continued to climb, and has been manipulated and hidden through strategies such as options, ETFs, swaps, futures and other derivative strategies; and that the true short interest could now realistically be sitting higher than 300% and potentially as high as 1000% or greater. Gamestop the company, under the guidance of its new Chairman Ryan Cohen, has turned itself around and continues to expand its opportunities and market share. A potential crypto dividend may trigger a squeeze, but notwithstanding this catalyst, the business' fundamentals have improved and the stock has moved into the Russell 1000 midcap index and it is highly anticipated that the company's earnings will continue to grow, with the stock being added to the S&P; 500 within a year.

There are several instances with documented proof of media manipulation, and their spreading and creating FUD (Fear, Uncertainty & Doubt). If you look into the ownership of the country's largest newspapers and media outlets, you will find market makers, hedge funds and big money corporations - which have their own agendas - own/influence these companies. Ask yourself, why has the media been so intent on communicating GameStop is a poor investment choice – for 8 months straight!? ... Why are they so concerned to advertise/advise against this company.

CNBC cut and removed the following statement from an interview with Gary Gensler, the new SEC chairman. Gary Gensler responded by tweeting a video clip of the deleted statement from his interview: "We must guard against fraud and manipulation, whether from big actors, hedge funds, or elsewhere. We are taking a close look at market structure to ensure our capital markets are working for investors”.

CNBC also tried to steer the narrative away from Citadel during the congressional hearings into Gamestop and Robinhood. The only part they edited out was the ten minutes and eighteen seconds of the hearing that targeted Citadel and Robinhood (between hour 2:37:34 and 2:47:52).
