Hope everyone is doing good right now! I feel like this could be a good week if you're still hodling your GME. We could just move sideways all week to so let's talk about some other plays. What's your favorite current move? What's the next move you want to make?

Right now I'm in the middle of 2 option plays I have strong confidence in. I'm in for some calls on $SLQT and some puts on $YUM. (will comment more details if anyone is interested) Taco bells announcements lately have been spooking me, but I still think they're overvalued at the current price.

There is one trade I want to enter as I feel it's going to be a home run, but the premiums are just too rich for my blood. If you have a decent sized portfolio with some option buying power I suggest looking into some puts on $COST.

If anyone wants to chat about my current positions or share opinions on them I'm all ears. I would love to talk about the Costco play and see what y'all think. So comment it up, let's talk Costco and any plays y'all wanna bring up! Have a great day everyone!
