I'm so tired of seeing the classic, "They are just jpegs" from all these trolls. I mentioned to a hater on another sub that they have a pilot episode for a mini series on the GameStop marketplace. Of course they said it was shit, so on, so forth.

This got me thinking, how would the developers, community and GameStop benefit from this type of video format? Well... check this out. What if the marketplace had a YouTube like section with ads; I know ads gross right? If you wanted to watch the content without ads you could purchase the NFT of the episode, or even the entire series. However the purchase would also come with a very small percentage of the ad revenue from those who did not, or could not purchase the NFT.

I would like to have a genuine discussion on this, any other thoughts on how this could be profitable?
