I got a request for an update, so I thought I would post one. Citadel's financial statement still haven't been uploaded to the SEC's website. I have turned on email notification, and my phone buzzes me every time I get an email, so I will know almost immediately after they post, and I already have some posts drafted for once the financials are posted. I have updated some of my schedule, and I hope it will provide meaningful data for every one. Hopefully, it is posted early next week, but I assure you all that as soon as they are posted, I will be putting a post together with screenshots of their year over year comparison.
