I've seen some posts lately encouraging people to be "patient" and not "rush" MOASS.

Let's get one thing clear: GameStop and GameStop stock are two ENTIRELY different things. We need to give GAMESTOP as a business time to grow, evolve, and become the legendary titan we all know it will become.

However, MOASS was already supposed to happen in fucking January 2021. And actually IT DID happen, and then they said FUCK YOU to all of retail and turned the game off before they could lose. To insinuate that we are somehow impatient for wanting the money we ALREADY EARNED almost a year ago is absolutely fucking lunacy.

Financial markets are zero sum and THEY need to HURRY TF UP and accept that they lost this bet, and cover their illegal ass butt-naked shorts. Why? Because fuck you, pay me that's why. I don't know a single person or family right now that couldn't use even $XXX,XXX, let alone the millions or billions (dare I say... trillions?) that other apes have earned.

We aren't being impatient, they fucking CHEATED. Do not try to convince anybody they shouldn't be angry because DAMN RIGHT we should be. Fuck them, power to the players ho.

Edit: to clarify, my call to be impatient is directed towards DRSing your shares, options traders buy your calls, and all of us make a lot of noise so people can't sweep this under the rug. Time is on our side but we should not be passive, is what I'm trying to get at.
