

Title: Shitadel fined 275,000 last year when they are managing 384 Billion would be like a person worth 1 million dollars being fine 70 cents. We need to not sell until we enforce fine on them beyond anything ever seen before Making the 2008 fiasco look like 70 cents.

Citadel is not only a market maker or a hedge fund but a conglomerate. Citadel Advisors LLC holds $384 billion in assets under management (AuM). Although Citadel Securities has at least $234 billion in AuM, which is a pittance compared to BlackRock's $8.7 trillion, its sway over the market is enormous. According to Bloomberg Intelligence, Citadel is right up there with NYSE and Nasdaq in terms of U.S. stock trading volume.

CITADEL SECURITIES FINED $275K FOR REPORTING VIOLATIONS AFTER $700K FINE IN 2020

MARCH 26, 2021 2:44 PM UTC, RICK STEVES

While claiming Citadel Securities had no relevant disciplinary history prior to this $275,000 settlement, FINRA did fine Citadel $700,000 for trading ahead of inactive OTC customer orders in a settlement last year.

Citadel Securities LLC has been fined $275,000 by FINRA amid reporting violations. The firm has been a FINRA member since 2005 and had no relevant disciplinary history prior to this, the authority said.

The Chicago-based firm engages in market making and provides execution services in U.S.
