I REALLY like the layout of how the wiki page put this so I'm going to use it..

**The evolution of** **ViacomCBS****

* 1912Paramount Pictures is founded

* 1927CBS is founded

* 1929Paramount buys 49% of CBS

* 1932Paramount sells back shares of CBS

* 1950Desilu is founded & CBS distributes its television

* 1952CBS creates the CBS Television Film Sales division

* 1958CBS Television Film Sales renamed as CBS Films

* 1966Gulf+Western buys Paramount

* 1968Gulf+Western renames Desilu as Paramount Television & CBS Films becomes CBS Enterprises

* 1970CBS Enterprises renamed as Viacom

- * 1971 Viacom is spun off from CBS as a separate company
- * 1985 Viacom buys full ownership of Showtime & MTV Networks
- * 1986 **National Amusements** buys Viacom
- * 1994 Viacom acquires Paramount Communications
- * 1995 Westinghouse buys CBS
- * 1997 Westinghouse renamed as CBS Corporation
- * 1999 Viacom buys CBS Corporation
- * 2001 Viacom buys BET Networks
- * 2006 Viacom splits into second CBS Corporation and Viacom
- * 2019 CBS Corporation and Viacom re-merge to form ViacomCBS

Who Owns ViacomCBS?

National Amusements does. They bought Viacom in 1986. After Viacom split from CBS the first time. Now here they are with a reemergence. Wonder if there's some "trust" issues involved here.

They also owned the Blockbuster Video chain from 1994-2004, at which time it was spun-off from Viacom.

Needed this put down somewhere. Guess this is where. So let's look

$VIAC \- ViacomCBS

Here's a chart showing that at the time of the March 2020 crash, this was mooning directly before that. It was \-$42 at the time of the tweet.

Other interesting nerd notes:

Morgan Stanley and Goldman Sachs' roles in volatility of ViacomCBS raise questions

It mentions " This prompted the two giant investment banks to seize Archegos' assets, including billions of dollars' worth of ViacomCBS stock, and sell it off through heavily discounted block trades. The move created significant pressure on the B shares of ViacomCBS, which plummeted 27% on Friday and another 7% the following Monday." ... "By March 22, ViacomCBS shares had surged more than 165% in 2021, closing above $100 per share. This marked a nearly 800% rise from its 2020 trough, almost exactly a year prior. "

archegos capital forced position liquidation contributes to viacom/discovery plunge states :

- * ViacomCBS and Discovery closed down more than 27% on Friday, with Viacom off more than 50% for the week while Discovery slid 45%.
- * For the week, Baidu was down more than 18%, Tencent more than 33% and Vipshop more than 31%.

Damn frogs don't belong in my market.
