A billionaire on the verge of drastically changing a corrupt landscape, run by the worst humans alive atm, would assume that the bad actors would try their best to infiltrate GME. Smart move by Ryan Cohen and Co to have the opponent not only reveal their hand (this week's fake hype and increase in price followed by a steep reversal) but narrow down who can and can not be trusted within the organization.

TLDR: RC and Execs set an announcement trap within the company and someone inside GME most likely took the bait and made hedgies show how scared they are of an announcement.
