

Title: GameStop, NFTs, and the rest of the world

Author: RELAXcowboy

Created 2022-07-20 13:21:39 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/w3m7ov/gamestop_nfts_and_the_rest_of_the_world/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/GME/comments/w3m7ov/gamestop\_nfts\_and\_the\_rest\_of\_the\_world/

I never make posts. Im a lurker. I believe in this. I believe we need to fight.

Im not going to pretend I understand the NFT landscape. I don't get the concept of it. But what I do get is it is a form of revenue that fucks like shitadel wont be able to touch.

Now on to the reason for the post.

I watch a YouTuber (1.6 m viewers) who does news about the gaming landscape. He released a video about Gamestop and NFTs (with no real mention of wall street attacking GME) and it broke my heart how he talked about how gamestop is a shitty company being run into the ground. All on the basis of shit articles he read about the failing NFT landscape.

Media is tryin to lump GME into the same sphere as asshole companies like Ubisoft and any other game dev that added NFTs to their games and shit to start turning games into jobs. We need to find a way to separate GME from the noise before it gets swept away in the wave.

It feels like if allowed to linger, this could turn the "gamers" who don't buy into the GME thing or don't know, if that is possible, against GameStop specifically. And if you turn people away from the company, then no one will bat an eye when media tells them the company has failed and you shouldn't invest in them.