So far surrounding the partnership announcement I've seen Immutable X on the news speaking about the partnership and speaking on behalf of GameStop. But why the fuck aren't Furlong or RC speaking about the partnership? It kinda pisses me off as an investor that those two are still keeping quiet, even though a huge partnership was announced. I should see Furlong and RC generating hype and trying to bring value to their investors. Yes I get it, action not words. But the public needs to hear from GameStop themselves. GameStop is doing amazing things behind the scenes, but they need to start fucking vocalizing it and letting the masses know what's going on. We can't increase the stock and company value if GameStop continues to not speak to the public. The ape community is finding out all of the new information surrounding GameStop but we need more investors and more publicity to what's going on. The average American has no clue what is going on and the share price reflects that disconnection. I've got diamond balls and I'm not selling anytime soon but I expect more from GameStop to try and bring in new investors. To put extreme pressure on the SHFs and make them lose control, we need the masses to understand what GameStop is doing and how GameStop is a good investment. But that can't fucking happen if GameStop continues to be fucking mute. It's really irritating me now. Enough cryptic tweets. Get out there and start hyping up your company. Cuz right now, the apes are doing more to bring attention to this stock than the god damn company themselves. And that's just insane to me.
