Hi guys, after inspecting my script for GME's FTDs, which were released today, I noticed the SEC had FTDs for the 1st half of February instead of the 2nd half of January. Because there's a T+2 reporting period for FTDs, I'm doubting the data because the SEC should not have yesterday's data, which was the 14th (Today's the 15th). However, the reporting period seems to align with calendar days for the month of February correctly.

Anyone else notice this anomaly? I checked other tickers, and no tickers have FTDs for the 2nd half of January either.

Is the SEC giving us incorrect data?

SEC is here:

You can compare data with chartexchange, which is here: <https://chartexchange.com/symbol/nyse-gme/failure-to-deliver/>
