

Title: Rhyme away...

Author: disoriented_llama

Created 2021-08-29 14:33:53 UTC

Permalink: /r/TheGloryHodl/comments/pdwc2x/rhyme_away/

Url: /r/DDintoGME/comments/pdmvsm/history_doesnt_repeat_itself_but_it_often_rhymes/

Is_self: False

Linked Post:

Body:

Saw a repost in the Jungle of someone else's karma-farming tweet, and yes, though this is a repost of a repost, I re-wrote the following to add more background information:

>Thus far in the month of August, there were ten intraday all-time highs on the S&P; 500. This has not happened in the month of August since 1987, which peaked on August 25, 1987, and was followed by Black Monday on October 19, 1987. The record number of intraday all-time highs in a month is eleven, which happened in August of 1929. The market peaked on September 3, 1929, and Black Thursday was on October 23, 1929.

I fully believe that we are going to crash hard. Do any apes have problems talking to the people in your lives about the overextended market? I'm sure most of the people of the 1920's thought the party would go on forever.