I'm not going to tell anyone what to do or how to do it, but there has been some information in comments section about whether to DRS 100% or leave "one in the chamber"

DRS is taking REAL shares out of circulation and putting them in YOUR name. Leaving shares in brokerages is basically saying "I know it may be a synthetic"

If the float gets completely DRSeD, or some sort of NFT dividend is issued that can't be replicated through monetary means, or a margin call happens, or maybe something we haven't even considered, Shorts will have to BUY BACK their synthetic shares. So if you have shares in your brokerage (Fidelity, TDA etc), then you will "hopefully" be able to sell those synthetics when the Shorts are scrambling to buy back those "IOUs". There is even speculation that the offers may just keep increasing by 10% until all synthetics are erased, but I digress.

The Shorts will basically be paying to cancel their IOUs so that they are completely off the market. So you won't have to sell any of your "real" shares that are DRSeD. This is the entire theory behind the "infinity squeeze" if the entire float is locked through DRS and there are still 100million shares in brokerages that need to be bought back due to them being "synthetics" then the squeeze can just continue going.

I personally believe that I will not want to sell from your DRS pot because those are actual shares. Let the price per share go up so that my "synthetics" AND "real shares" increase in value, and sell a shit synthetic for a phone number price.

But let's not get confused about "synthetics being worthless". That is FUD or it is a lack of education. I would suggest going back and reading some of the amazing DD that has been done over the last 10 months.

If any wrinkle brains want to correct anything I said, PLEASE do. I want everyone to understand what they are involved in
