So, it seems as if the U.S. is in a 100 year (approximately) debt cycle.

For decades, the Federal Reserve prints money and pumps it into the market to maintain growth and attract investors.

At the end of the cycle, the super elites take their profits out at the very top, which results in a market dip and creates a panic. The panic causes everyone to rush to take their money out of the market at the same time and it collapses. Exactly how a ponzi scheme collapses.

From Investopedia: Ponzi schemes usually collapse, as there is no legitimate profit to sustain the process. The scheme requires a regular flow of new money from new investors to continue. When the flow of new investors slows down or if a large number of investors want to cash out, the scheme collapses."

I'm not a white collar crime expert, but how is the stock market any different?

TL;DR: The stock market is just one massive ponzi scheme.
