Hello Apes of the Jungle. It seems Reddit certainly wanted my first week as moderator to be memorable. Mod mail has been flooded with reports from apes that had their posts automatically removed despite there being **NO AUTOMOD ACTIVE AT ALL.** u/pinkcatsonacid **deleted the entire automod code** to test if this was coming from higher up, (reddit admins) and sure enough it is. The way around that was to start to manually approve apes as approved users.

This is a massive undertaking as the amount of time it would take to manually approve each ape would be actual years. Pink reached out to reddit admins for approval assistance or help with the issue of people having their posts removed and (lo and behold!) got no response. With this in mind, we have been manually approving as many apes as we can, although the amount of requests and time required to accomplish this task are both staggeringly high. Today however, reddit threw yet another wrench in our gears. I started getting this message while approving apes.

unable to approve anyone

So I closed and reloaded reddit, same thing. Went over to my PC, tried it again.

Just wanted to keep you all updated. It seems our sub is being targeted for overt fuckery by reddit admins. This conclusion is inescapable, it is what all evidence points to. I don't know what else to say other than this is maximum confirmation bias to me. We must be getting real close. Stay vigilant my good apes.

Edit- Reddit was on the fritz for me for many hours today. It's working again now, but I am still unable to manually approve. Pink was saying it may be because I was typing the names in manually while she was approving via modmail, which may be a workaround. Even still, I didn't even approve 15 people today so there is no reason it should have capped me. When you add all the other errors up and all the comments from apes saying they are having similar issues but only on GME related subs, it starts to smell fishier. To play devils advocate it may be a series of very suspiciously coinciding errors which happen only on GME subs because they are the ones with the highest traffic. Apes in comments have also suggested that reddit is having sitewide API issues which are manifesting most on the GME subs because they are the most popular. These may be the case, but also sound like they may be convenient excuses for why apes can't filter for DD or find posts in new, among many other issues.
