So we've all seen the RC's tweets. I've enjoyed going into the comments and seeing all the different explanations that apes have come up with to explain them and what's next for gamestop.

I know there are so many more important things with the MOASS, but holy shit do I need closure on these tweets. The man is literally playing a game of pictionary with half a million people.

Can you imagine playing a game, and your partner draws things like a ice cream cone, a toilet, a sign being destroyed...and your supposed to guess DRS? I'd be muttering about us having no points if that happened. Apart of me thinks there is no way that those tweets were meant to lead apes to computershare, but then he realized it was helping and was like "...well alright then".

At the end of this I need a picture book put out by Ryan Cohen with the tweet and what it was meant to mean, cause at this point I'm just "poop? yup poop" and hope it goes up.
