

Title: I thought contracts for difference were illegal?

Author: _foo-bar_

Created 2022-05-07 03:37:03 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/uk4o27/i_thought_contracts_for_difference_were_illegal/

Url:

https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/uk4o27/i\_thought\_contracts\_for\_difference\_were\_illegal/

I found this cool little website at the DTCC:

<https://pddata.dtcc.com/gtr/sec/dashboard.do>

When I download the sec cumulative equities slice reports I see tons of

Equity:ContractForDifference:PriceReturnBasicPerformance:SingleName

Like on April 7th I see one for what looks like 210,000 shares of GME.

I thought that contracts for difference were illegal. Could anyone explain why I'm seeing so many of these?