Robinhood is actively trying to screw GME, actively aiding shortsellers, and you're helping them extensively. Robinhood has already stopped buying before, but you think you'll use them until you can sell in the future? You think if GME goes sky high Robinhood will let you sell? Robinhood will come up with whatever legalese they need to 'temporarily lock your shares for your own protection' before you can buy or sell or whatever other BS they can come up with. And the SEC and Market Makers will be right there backing up Robinhood "for the good of the market."

STOP using Robinhood, you are literally one of the major reasons why GME is unable to take off. DRS your shares yesterday, stop being lazy.
