

Title: Why 10k bots invading a GME sub is a fucking BULLISH sign

Author: Expensive-Two-8128

Created 2022-04-21 17:36:45 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/u8t1s8/why_10k_bots_invading_a_gme_sub_is_a_fucking/

Url:

https://www.reddit.com/r/Superstonk/comments/u8sl28/why_10k_bots_invading_the_sub_is_a_fucking/

Linked Post Content:

Edit: Credit to OP of post HERE*, * u/1FuzzyPickle for inspiring my post. :)

Why is it bullish? Because it means the GME shorts are still trying

Let's pick it apart:

* 1) If 10k bots invaded the sub, then GME shorts are still trying

* 2) GME shorts would not try if they did not need to try

* 3) Because GME shorts are still trying, then MOASS was never in jeopardy by new rules

* 4) So if MOASS was never in jeopardy by new rules, then why are they selling exactly that?

* Because the GME shorts are more FUCKING DESPERATE than they've ever been

* They NEED to get you to believe MOASS is at risk to induce maximum fear, uncertainty, and doubt among the core demographics of GME shareholders, so they can convince you to panic and part with your DRS'd GME

Think about it:

* If passing new rules could ACTUALLY get the GME shorts off the hook, they wouldn't want us to know about it so they could get the rules passed without any opposition

* "But they don't want us to know about it! They tried to pass this quietly!" No, actually they didn't- but they WANT you to think that:

* 1) Create the perception they're trying to sneak this through by getting the max # of people to believe it via posts about a massive concern getting buried over and over

* 2) Watch as a wave of opposition swells up and many good & genuine apes (both commenters & OP's) are swept up, while the movement takes on an energetic life of its own

* 3) All of this happening while being boosted/shepherded by 10,000 bots

IMO, this wasn't about commenting/not commenting on the rules- I think that's a good thing: I think it was about trying to crack the door, create leverage, and then build on that by driving maximum FUD, MUD (credit OP u/JustBeingPunny), and division in the community

Why? Because the GME shorts know that no matter what:

THE ONLY WAY TO PREVENT MOASS IS IF THEY CAN PREVENT THE GME FLOAT FROM BEING DRS'd

YOU (NOT THE GME SHORTS) CONTROL WHETHER OR NOT THE GME FLOAT IS DRS'd

■ NOW DRS YOUR GME UNTIL YOUR FINGERS BLEED ■