I'm a really, really smooth brained ape. I know to hodl my GME close, and have been despite the struggles of the current world. I've slowly built to hold an xxx amount.

I have heard that the stock split may be one of the catalysts for our ride to the moon, can anyone explain how/why? Will the stocks that shorted not be effectively split (I.E. short seller now owes stocks at a 4:1 ratio)

I don't have much market experience. I was much better about reading DD in the past. It is harder to find it now as I don't use Reddit much and the majority of information is buried under CS posts (Not saying that's bad, it encourages other apes to do it, and helps our bot keep track of how many we have safe.) which has made it harder for my shiny brain to find.

Much love to all of you apes. Moon soon, hopefully. ■
