My mini ape and I had a wonderful chat today.

While we researched the new nft games and talked about the moves he had an idea.

I think hands down its the best I've heard yet so I'm gonna share it on his behalf.

He watched the nft game clip intensely then turned to me and said, there you go that's what I would do too.

I asked if it was make a kl animal game?

He said yes I'd like that also but that's not my plan.

He then explained if the new game characters are vr and ar compatible we can play the film.

When I said you think they will end up making a film he said no.

Ryan loves games, clues and he's very clever. If I was Ryan when my time comes, I'd make an nft that gave control of the market to the holder.

Everyone still has their paper and gets money but if you can find the easter eggs and get the nft before anyone else you control the market.

Just like ready player1!

I asked if I was Ryan cohen would he want me to give him control when my time comes. He said no!!!!

Apparently he would rather play and win it and thinks if everyone plays the games to find the clues and secrets he'll get alot more money for his piece of paper.

He's also very confident that he knows me best so he'd out smart me and solve it quick then let everyone else catch up so they don't feel bad before he wins.

To be clear he's younger than 9 and is planning on still holding when Ryan cohen dies of old age. I can't fault his logic, if Ryan's family still get paid why wouldn't he want them paid double and have the best candidate on the globe do the job?
