Greetings from Australia Fellow Apes

For a few months now I've been trading options on GME(hasnt been fun that's for sure) and lately I been running into an Error Message of sorts saying "Exposure cannot be increased due to instrument configuration." when attempting to buy deep OTM Calls on our beloved Stock.

After just getting off the phone to them, I was informed that they apparently have a policy for Options that you cannot purchase for more then 50% over the price of the stock.

She didn't mention if it was just GME or all stocks but either way that's pretty odd they want to somehow safeguard me from myself by not letting me loose lots of money right...? or maybe safeguard themselves from the same thing ;)

if thats not bullish af i dunno what else is.

And for anyone out there in Australia that thought you couldn't trade options here, now you know!

GME to the Moooon
