Ryan Cohen tweeted a presidential quote and a Purple Heart in advance of what actions he planned this week, in a way that could not possibly be construed as communicating intent, without committing in case the plan had to change, and without telegraphing the move to those who would trade against him.

WIKIPEDIA

The Purple Heart (PH) is a United States military decoration awarded in the name of the President to those wounded or killed while serving, on or after 5 April 1917, with the U.S. military.

This week many soldiers were wounded, some taken out of the fight. Know their sacrifice will not be in vain and that the Commander in Chief, President of GMErica, RC himself had recognized all that could be lost in this battle.

This was D-day. A surprise attack where even those in position on the front lines knew nothing of the full plan, but knew it was big and that the risks were great.

Now think about the strategy sessions going on at the 'Axis' investment houses with positions in GME, whether they be short or long. No move is unthinkable. Believe you can try to ride both sides of the value spike? Think again. RC may just pull the rug, or maintain status quo indefinitely and bleed those who would hedge against a move in either direction completely dry.

The longer they wait to close, the higher the risk - and all cards are still on the table. Go short? He creates conditions for valuation increase. Roll into risk-reversal? He scraps the turnaround plan and walks. This time he walks with muuuuch heavier pockets. The bunkers and ammo depots of the enemy raided, the beachhead taken, preparations to march inland in progress.

Demands and rebukes on RC will accomplish nothing. While many of us sit watching tickers and asking 'wen lambo?' He is grinding it out improving the real value of GameStop, against the wishes of some of the most powerful people on the planet. I imagine he respects the work it took many of us to invest and back his play, but he will also not sacrifice the vision begun over two years ago just to print our FDs or save us from our own stupidity.

GME is, and always has been the play.
