The title says it all. I read a post from u/townofsaalemfangay from the other "result of microwaved corn" sub and I agree with the mindset. Just the word, synthetic shares is kind of misleading, because it implies that something really exists, just not organic/real for loss of a better word. Of course one can buy a share, and never know if it's "synthetic" or "real" as a share is a share in our wallets. But if we all accept that, they can keep the infinite money glitch running and delaying the inevitable. I think we should make our immediate environment aware of this by always saying that shares from naked shorting are counterfeit shares, and never even should have been able to be created. You can look at his post here: https://www.reddit.com/r/amcstock/comments/txl82b/the_market_terminology_needs_to_be_updated_to/

So, what do you apes think? Can we do it?

Transparency: I ow both GME and the unspeakable microwaved corn stocks. Not many, but I did my part and DRS'ed some, but have issues with brokers foot dragging the rest...
