I'm really feeling the FUD today. I'm no shill, I've gone all in on GME, more than I should. I'm an xxx hodler, but I was late to the party. The bulk were bought around $200-220. I'm feeling very exposed at the moment, down around 50%. I'm torn between going even deeper to average down, or sitting it out. On the one hand averaging down makes sense, but on the other I feel like a gambler chasing his losses

I've read a lot of the DDs, and can see some things that were predicted seemingly coming true. But then again this does feel like a cult at times too.

My head is wrecked. I'm currently hodling because I can't afford to sell at -50%. If I buy more it brings my break even price down to either 175 or 165 for the sort of amounts I'd put in, but I'd be putting my shirt on it.

Im not really asking for advice, but I just needed to get it off my chest.
