

Title: So many transfers, not enough time... Money...

Author: thanimalValdez

Created 2021-09-17 16:46:22 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/pq3u8k/so_many_transfers_not_enough_time_money/

Url:

https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/pq3u8k/so\_many\_transfers\_not\_enough\_time\_money/

So way back in Jan, we were all using the brokerage platform not to be named (it rhymes with slobbin' good) But our smooth brains could understand all the reasons they were not to be trusted. So in true mass exodus, we fled from that platform to the next big thing; Webull. Shortly thereafter, PFOF across multiple platforms became well known and we were all told it was time for another shift. Our sights were then set on Fidelity and man did we ever flood those poor bastards with transfer requests, emails, dm's and phone calls. There soon came a lot of mud slinging about which was the true king, Fidelity, TDA, whoever else was the next big name. Now, here we are again, talking about yet another platform that is the new God, Computer Share. Now, I understand that registering our shares in our name and getting the fancy paper to frame on our wall is nice & all, but is there really enough reason to go through (And Pay for) yet another share transfer? Is this really beneficial to the "cause" And beneficial to me, the shareholder? Will this be the end all say all of transfers or is anyone out there still looking for the next big thing? Please, enlighten a broke ass, smooth brained fellow ape who can hardly afford more shares, let alone Another transfer fee!

TL:DR - someone please explain to me like I'm 4 yrs old, why should I be concerned with transferring my shares to CS! What happens if I stick with Fidelity? And please point me to the best info on this topic, including how best to do the transfer.