

Title: Boom Goes the Dynamite

Author: disoriented_llama

Created 2021-09-11 09:12:58 UTC

Permalink: /r/TheGloryHodl/comments/pm45cf/boom_goes_the_dynamite/

Url: /r/GMEJungle/comments/pjz6dp/controlled_demolition_theory/

Is_self: False

Linked Post:

Body:

I'm pretty smooth brained, but I've been thinking about the chess board we're all playing on. With all the fuckery going on with the otc markets and everything else, I suspect that there's a plan to bring this down.

Moving all the zombie stocks makes sense if they knew that moass would cause all of those to explode as well, and loopring is talking about q4 being big for them with a premium client. What if the plan is as follows:

Move all the zombies to the otc market so we can't all FOMO in launch moass using an NFT to force clean out the market after all the exec team is vested (starting next month iirc, I don't see RC fucking his own people over) IIRC NYSE needs 10 day notice for dividends, public only gets 10 minutes. Most people daytrading and not already hodling won't even be able to catch a ride on the rocket

Now this part is where it gets iffy

I could in theory see them turning off the buy button for GME across every broker when they light this candle. NFT means they have to close, and they want to minimize FOMO because at that point, MOASS is unstoppable and the feds will want to limit the damage done, so they turn off the buy button, apes get paid, but fomo can't get in. I don't know if they would cap the price or not, maybe do a mass settlement, but I somehow doubt that they would do that with the current level of shitshow in play. Too many eyes on, and frankly, I think that china announcing their own exchange means that they would absolutely fucking not risk more trust in US markets being fucked over and china getting that business.

Thoughts?