Your efforts at this point and going forward are futile. For the next couple of months, as you waste billions of dollars trying to keep GME below your threshold of margin call, it's all for nothing. Your fate is guaranteed to be the same. Once this split and dividend is live, you will be exposed in front of the world and looked at as a disgrace. And every day you wake up with the duty of shorting GME to keep it down or put it out of business is hilariously counterproductive and meaningless. It's a desperate attempt at disturbing the psychology of retail, but it is all in vain, we see through you.

It is similar to your whole life. All of your contributions to the betterment of society are zilch. Nothing! It's been a waste at this point. Think about a burnout who lives in his parents basement doing nothing all day long, the ones your hypocritical mind thinks you are so much better than, in reality, you are worse than that. You are nothing more than a parasite to this country. And will continue to be for as long as you are stuck in your shameful ways. People actually put their lives on the line to defend this country that you are taking advantage of and shitting on. It's the ultimate slap in the face to those men and women, you should be ashamed. But disgraceful financial terrorist like you have no morals, so you couldn't care less.

Perhaps you should try and salvage what you have left and you might have something to show for in this life. The ball is in your court. But continuing to do the same thing and expecting different results is the definition of insanity. And you must be insane to think continually shorting GME will bring you success. All it will bring you is vaporization of everything you own. Sooner rather than later. GOOD RIDDANCE!
