

Title: BCG US Court Case Document Dump

Author: disoriented_llama

Created 2022-04-19 18:44:21 UTC

Permalink: /r/TheGloryHodl/comments/u7cbi7/bcg_us_court_case_document_dump/

Url: /r/Superstonk/comments/ttdovt/bcg_us_court_case_document_dump/

Linked Post Content:

Sup Apes,

All the extra buzz around BCG lately motivated me to do some digging into all the legal cases filed by and against them:

<https://dockets.justia.com/search?parties=Boston+Consulting+Group&cases;=mostrecent&sort-by-last-up-date;=false>

*edit: link was broken, fixed now

At the top you can see the suit the bastards filed against my favorite company, Gamestop. Lower on the list you can see NCR, which got some traction here a couple of days ago.

Abstract

This is a file dump of a selection of documents from most of the cases in the search results above. I say most because legal stuff is complicated and I'm not a lawyer (or financial advisor), so I just pulled what looked interesting. E.g. the first filing/complaint and last one that hopefully summarized the judge's verdict.

There's probably plenty more files with interesting info in them that I missed. Here, I hope to provide an initial document dump and a process for how to do this.

The Docs

Link: <https://gateway.pinata.cloud/ipfs/QmWKk5VNcbqVe1k62wMhLotpvxxzgauuZWMEdjB8rum4zH>

SHA265 Hash: 8DEC42A8EC512EC916B97AC3E288303D58AC7C0276A39BE208CB778582409A68

Security Advisory

You'd be correct to be wary of a .zip file of PDF docs from a random Reddit user. If you're concerned, please follow proper opsec and scan for viruses and/or open in a virtual machine. Filehash also provided for you to verify integrity and sameness.

Note: Using Pinata because again, GS inspired me. It's a distributed filesystem that works a lot like torrents. Pinata also happens to be what GS is using for their NFT feature :)

Call to action

What I'm most interested in is getting the eyes of the Reddit hive mind on all of these docs. This is waaaaay more than one person can review alone. Plus legalease make brain go blkaksdjfkldjkdjfkj.

Process / Repro Steps

- I went through the list and under the Access additional case information on PACER section, clicked on "History/Documents".
- You need a PACER account to access most of these. I made one here: <https://pacer.uscourts.gov/register-account/pacer-case-search-only>
- While the account is free, you're billed for document access per-page. If it's under $30 per quarter, it's free though so I hope that's the case for most of you. Some of these docs were thicc so I'm personally expecting a $50 bill from the US gov within the next couple of months.
- Try clicking on the link again. Then, use "Run query"
- You'll be presented with a page that looks like it's from 1998. This is expected.
- The left-hand column with the numbers are the links to the documents.
- You might have to click through another page to get to the document (e.g. select the main document or an attached file)

- Review the charges and get ur doc
- Repeat for the rest of the stuff you're interested in from justia.com

Random thought: has anybody reached out to Lucy Komisar about this? I think it'd be ideal to have an investigative journalist on this. For those that don't know, she wrote a great article about the situation we're familiar with and did an AMA here a while ago.