hey

a lot of us are proud of what you're (allegedly) building and what you've put together i saw one of your videos where you talked about how you were bringing people together to build a business for chewy and i really value that approach you have towards business the board you've put together for gamestop looks amazing and i'm sure your team will go extremely far my dad always said the more you talk the more you learn and you seem to be doing just that and i guess we all are on these subs/ forums i'm sorry you that your dad passed, you've done and are doing very well despite everything that you've been through and i'm sure he's happy with what you're doing take a break once in a while but i'm sure that we're all grateful for what you're doing you seem to like a challenge so that's probably why you're trying to transform gamestop, i think you're winning keep going

edit: felt like this needed to be said so much of this year has been about moass but what about the guy who's just trying to turn a business around, i like him moass or not i like what he's doing so i put some money in to see what he can do with it thanks for the support for this post people x
