Hello fellow apes,

With everything thats going on lately, things are really kicking off. Yes, its an exiting time for gme indeed. I always wanted to DRS my shares, but never got around to actually do it. Now, i live in Norway, and ive heard DRS'ing from outside the US usually takes like 1 to several weeks, or even more.

What happends when you initate the process of DRS'ing the shares ? Do they become unavailable / "suspended" to trade for those weeks, and you cant sell them ect? Because it that is the case i dont feel comfortable DRS right now.

On the other hand if it works in the way that they just stay as they usually do for the time it takes for the DRS to go through, meaning i can for example sell them or whatever (just an example, in case of moazz,) and then they suddently get switched over to computershare in an instant when the process is ready i guess, i dont see any harm in DRS'ing.

But yeah, i dont know how this works, so welp i guess. I certainly want to DRS and fuk some hedgies. Any help is appriciated, BUY, DRS, HODL
