

Title: Citadel Bonds, UNDERWATER

Author: disoriented_llama

Created 2022-06-20 20:19:58 UTC

Permalink: /r/TheGloryHodl/comments/vguroy/citadel_bonds_underwater/

Url: /r/Superstonk/comments/vg4vrk/citadel_bonds_underwater/

Linked Post Content:

Looks like the Citadel team was full of apes as well. Underwater 8% and payment due 9/9/2022 ■■■■

I own GameStop shares, and I think that should be transparent.

https://markets.businessinsider.com/bonds/citadel\_finance\_llc-dl-notes\_202121-26\_regs-bond-2026-usu1718raa69

I haven't seen this posted. Figure someone who has a wrinkle might be able to decipher. They need to raise 8% just to get back to Zero. Bond created on 9/9/21 ■ and end date is 3/8/26 ... with 2 payments per year. Lego in trouble. GameStop is growing stronger everyday ■■

EDIT: found another one ■ also underwater. This is only what we can see, I wonder what's hiding behind closed doors. I looked up Virtu and upcoming bond payments about haven't found anything. I believe we found our smoking gun though ... Citadel is in for some serious pain ahead. At least to 2026, so why would apes leave this play before then?

https://markets.businessinsider.com/bonds/citadel\_lpdl-notes\_201717-23\_regs-bond-2023-usu1569xaa38?op=1

Roaring Kitty - Kenny Powers snip it, but if there are bonds, there is most likely swaps correct? ■

<https://twitter.com/mbruno03/status/1538568578923995143?s=21&t;=DTnCSYiuSQeva8zjn2yWGA>