I keep digging and I keep finding crazier shit that just seems to be so obvious when you put it under a microscope.

TLDR: Cohen hinted at us about a future acquisition involving Loopring. See post for tweet explanations. Daniel Wang stepping down, their NDA being mute, and Byron also dropping breadcrumbs again as well.

First tweet we got right fuckin here baby:

The pregnancy has always been linked to them delivering their web3/meta/marketplace products. I reverse image searched this on google and the overwhelming response was..

A 20 week fetus. Interesting. Lets trace back 20 weeks from the time of this tweet and see if we can find anything related to their web3 products.

Well fuck me. In reverse it says "I have a small wee wee."

I remember people on reddit saying reverse sentences mean opposites or some shit like that so hear me out.

Whats the opposite of a small wee wee?

A BIG WANG

Funny enough around this time is when Daniel Wang, at time CEO/founder, was going ballistic on discord and also ended up stepping down from Loopring.

Shit man if he stayed maybe there'd be a connection there....

Or.....

Maybe he stepped down because he had to fulfill a GME acquisition.

Heres some examples if you don't believe me.

Normally during acquisitions/mergers/reverse mergers CEOs tend to step down. Whether it be because they don't want someone directing their role, they have finished a project and are onto the next big thing and the acquisition is a finish line, or to serve as an advisor from the acquired company.

Also a merger/reverse merger would have a tombstone and we all know Cohen has that Tombstone tweet, even from the website called tombstone builder with his fucking name as the death date lmao.

During this time Wang also had to sell a SHITLOAD of his LRC and people assumed he was bagging his profits and running. People were also pissed as fuck about their NDA and leaving their investors in the dark, discord turned into a fucking war zone. But my guess is that they've been told to keep quiet until the acquisition is complete, along with Wang being forced to liquidate his holdings for the merger to go through so that he didn't have a majority stake over Cohen, also points to an acquisition, NDA being ironclad also points to an acquisition. Everybody was dogging LRC for not negotiating their NDA as good as immutable but I'd assume Loop is the big boss here and Immutable isn't being acquired whatsoever so they don't care about hype posts for them.

Common sense time. **WHY THE FUCK WOULD YOU BUILD A COMPANY FROM NOTHING AND BEFORE THE BIGGEST NEWS DROP OF HIS LIFE FOR ALL OF HIS HARD WORK, LIQUIDATE HIS ENTIRE HOLDINGS OF LRC.****

No one does that, in the meantime he was telling people "The quarterly report will be worth more than 10 quarterly reports combined." And other cryptic shit about feeling sorry for the people who sold etc.

My guess? Simply because he had to for the acquisition, period.

Also Byron after Wang stepped down:

(ignore the numerous apple references thats fro another post)

Looking at the sonogram inception date in reverse, it takes us to wang stepping down so that the company can be acquired, their delivery date could very well be the same date as they plan their acquisition.

Also it makes sense \[and cents ;) \]for both parties mainly.

Loopring has the sword but with no adoptiveness the sword is useless.

GameStop can bring millions of people onto layer 2 overnight.

This is in both of their best interests, and Wang stepping down and unloading his bags was probably hard for him to do but he did it for the long term growth and health of his company he created. Kudos Mr Wang you're a stronger man than most people here dealing with all of the hate during that transition while also being mute from your NDA.

Cheers!
