This is a moment I've been dreading. I had hoped it would not come. This is an end game position they are setting up.

This is the means by which others will be made to hold the bag.

Undoubtedly these etfs will be packaged with other perfectly legit etfs, rated positively by moody's as a BUNDLE, and sold off the same way MBS's and CDO's were. Sold to pension funds across the nations. Municipalities will inadvertently buy into these, teachers unions will, STATES will, and this is how they un-fuck themselves.

Even if they don't get all of their shorts off their own plates and onto someone else's, if they can spread the liability then they can call for 'SAVE THE TEACHERS' and 'SAVE THE SMALL TOWNS' instead of 'bail out the hedge funds' which obviously won't play.

All it takes is the tiniest bit of exposure to pull this off, because shorts expose you to infinite losses. They have been trying to become 'too big to fail' for years now, surviving another day in the process, to get to a moment just like this. This wasn't their plan 'A', but it absolutely was their plan 'J'.

They are going to make these bundles so amazingly profitable that it will be hard to resist - They will be happy to offer large structured returns (as a percentage) to attract clients, because they KNOW that it's a small price to pay to spread the liability around.

They are going to sell these bundles as the perfect hedge against a market decline, because of their 'targeted short exposure' as a feature rather than a liability. And for every unsuspecting pension fund manager, or small town comptroller, these will seem like a godsend - a way to insulate their fixed budgetary obligations against a the market decline everyone fears is coming.

Before we only had to hold, but now we have to act. We need laws on the books that prevent state and local government from engaging in any financial product that has any short exposure, and we need it now. That will block state/city pension and teacher's union exposure.

There are 50 states and we need to all move on this. This can't be done federally so it's time to get to know your state reps, not just your federal ones now. You thought DRS'ing was hard? (It isn't, but you thought it would be) well you've leveled up and your next boss is calling your local state rep and requesting they write a bill that blocks exposure to 'short' financial products because it exposes teachers and small towns to infinite loss.

This is a call to action. I'll be making top level posts on this semi regularly as necessary.
