Day 2:

>Together we fight

>

>Change must come to the system

>

>We are the future

Preface for post length:

Lately I've been feeling like creating something. Usually I go play a game that allows some creative freedom (Rimworld, Eco, etc) where I can build something. But I haven't found much fulfillment in them recently. I sometimes draw, or paint but my creativity is often fleeting and I rarely finish a piece.

However, I've wondered how much can be attributed to forcing the mind to make something with consistency (garbage or not) in breaking through writers block. Maybe having a goal instead of just vomiting out some art before the feeling fades will encourage that creativity to become more on-demand than being at it's whim.

Gamestop has played a huge part in my life in the last year. Dreams of rocket ships and the moon and what life can be like afterwards have kept me going. Time to channel that in to something instead of stress and anxiety in waiting. Maybe I'll look forward to another day of trading sideways so that I have another day to create something.

Disclaimer: I'm doing my best to make them unique and thoughtful but I'm gonna hit writer's block at some points and will very much be rehashing memes once in awhile.
