My broker has confirmed the transfer of my shares to our supreme leader ComputerShare, though I haven't got my snail mail yet with my account details. I'm too smooth to know if my anxiety is warranted.

My god is this the slowest snail I've encountered, my transfer was 'successfully' completed on the 12th of December last year, leaving me no choice but to join the neighbours dog and wait for the postman outside every morning. Does this seem too long?

To put my anxiety to rest I've attempted to call ComputerShare recently to have my snail mail delivered by courier but every number that's been suggested I've tried but just can't get a hold of an actual human to do this! I'm an Aussie ape if any of you blokes/lady-blokes want to point me in the right direction I'll buy you a beer.

Apologies if this isn't the right avenue for guidance.
