I've been apart of this since January 2021 and the fact that GME is at such a low price that we haven't seen for a little less then a year has me on the edge of my seat. It traded sideways pretty much the entire time except for a few jumps upward, but a dip like this gives me a feeling something crazy is coming. Maybe it dips even lower which will help me lower my cost basis and also help us lock the float. Perhaps it explodes upwards, who knows. It could even continue to trade sideways. Any of those options sound realistic to me, but my whole point is that we haven't seen anything like this in awhile and it has my tits jacked. I'm excited to see what happens and even more excited to see what our company announces, no matter what happens I'm not going anywhere until it reaches the price I feel comfortable selling at.
