This is my second time DRSing my GME shares, first in September and second in December. The first time I did it, my shares in my TD Canda Trust showed 0 balance and they withdrew the DRS payment looooong before I received anything from CS-US in mail.

This is where it gets interesting. The second time I initiate a DRS transfer, not only do I still have the 42 shares in my cash account, but it also shows up in my TD Webbroker. Currently, it looks like I have additional 42 shares PLUS the 90CAD dollars in my cash account, which should have been withdrawn along with the cash for payment before CS-US showed those 42 shares.

The question:

Is it possible that TD fucked up and didn't DRS on their end, I am so confused. I mean i fucking love having more shares than I actually own but seems some sort of clerical error? Someone help my smooth brain to understand because based on the first experience of DRS, this shouldnt have had occured.
