

Title: INFLATION IS A TACTIC TO MAKE YOU SELL

Author: Dv77772

Created 2022-03-12 17:49:04 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/tcms7z/inflation_is_a_tactic_to_make_you_sell/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/tcms7z/inflation\_is\_a\_tactic\_to\_make\_you\_sell/

Hey guys, I'm unable to post in SS so I thought this sub would appreciate this theory.

I thought of this theory where inflation and the raising prices were somewhat of a strategy against people holding AND an easier way to pay off their loans. The counter to inflation would be the Fed raising their rates, right?

When MOASS happens, after going through the brokers, firms, banks, market makers, the Fed is the one to hold the bag eventually. They don't or shouldn't benefit from MOASS, therefore they don't need it to happen. They and all entities with bad positions that owe money, would benefit from inflation. **Per Investopedia:** *Inflation allows borrowers to pay lenders back with money worth less than when it was originally borrowed, which benefits borrowers. *

As for a strategy against people holding, they know that regular people are a large majority of people who are betting on the MOASS. Regular people also are going to suffer the most due to inflation. Higher costs, wages being worth less, could cause many people to paperhand. They are possibly betting on it as well.

Moral of the story: BUY, HOLD, DRS

TL;DR: Inflation could cause people who are already struggling to struggle more and not be able to hold. Inflation also aids loan paybacks.