Hi folks,

Long time GME lurker, first time contributor. I've held shares since January 2021 and have followed discussions through all of the subs.

This stock split / dividend has been mooted as a MOASS catalyst since the early days, however I am still skeptical. People seem to now think MOASS before June is a forgone conclusion, what is stopping Citadel et al. from discovering / utilising other ways to hide their naked positions?

I am trying to promote a healthy discussion here, and to discover if any compelling counter arguments exist, explaining events that could lead to the MOASS not occurring when the dividend is issued. I am not trying to spread FUD and I believe in the MOASS hypothesis, I am however concerned by the powers of Citadel as market makers.

Thanks yall ■■■■■■
