I am a Euro ape - I had opened an IBKR account and through that, was able to transfer 1 share to Computershare and now I have a CS account as well.

I hold some shares in GME on Degiro. I put in a request at Degiro to transfer these shares to my IBKR account so I can then transfer from IBKR to my CS Account (Degiro said they could not transfer directly to CS).

Degiro sent me an email saying they are processing the transfer, and that I should inform IBKR that an incoming transfer is on the way so they can make the required preparations to receive the transfer.

I logged into my IBKR account and went to the Transfer Positions Tab. I clicked on Income transfers and provided the details they asked (account number, stock name, quantity etc).

I then see the following 'disclaimer':

* Use Transfer International Assets to request a transfer of non-cash assets outside of the United States. (i.e. transfer European and Asia/Pacific stocks) You must coordinate a matching transfer instruction with your carrying broker. Ensure that the instructions are sent to your carrying broker and follow your carrying broker's required procedures or guidelines.

* If your transfer request includes securities held in multiple accounts at the broker, submit separate requests for each account.

* Only electronic transfers of securities are supported. No physical certificates can be transferred.

* **In the Spanish market, all shares transferred to us will be re-registered under their street name as we do not hold shares in the name of the final beneficiary. Re-registration in the Spanish market is accomplished by selling the shares on the exchange in the name of the final beneficiary and then purchasing the shares in our name. Consult your tax advisor with questions about reporting such activity.**

Is this 3rd point - that they will sell the shares first and then repurchase it the usual norm? I have not yet clicked on 'Continue' to take this forward, and any feedback, advice or experiences shared by other apes would be really appreciated!
